

Stepping Up for Social Justice Activism

How you can create change

The WSU School of Social Work Office of Continuing Education and Professional Development invite you to attend this Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Series event.

October 22, 2020

4 to 6 p.m.

RSVP for the Zoom link at events.wayne.edu

FREE CEU CREDITS

We are offering 2 FREE Social Work continuing education credits. Pre-registration via the RSVP is required.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

For questions contact
Betsy Vanderstelt
fq0994@wayne.edu or
313-577-4464 or visit
events.wayne.edu.

This virtual community conversation will highlight the experience of local advocates working to advance social justice. Attendees will be provided with tangible takeaways, describing ways in which they can be involved in advancing social change in their community. Detroit community activist Shea Howell will moderate the discussion with the following panelists:

- Teddy Dorsette III is a Deaf filmmaker, entrepreneur, and social justice advocate from the Detroit area. Dorsette is a Communications Manager and Organizer at Detroit Disability Power.
- Dr. Abdul El-Sayed, MD is a physician, epidemiologist, public health expert, and progressive activist. Dr. El-Sayed is the Chair of Southpaw Michigan, a contributor at CNN and an author.
- Tawana Petty is a mother, social justice organizer, youth advocate, poet and author. Petty is a Non-Resident Fellow at the Digital Civil Society Lab.

