

WAYNE STATE

School of Social Work

Graduate Certificate Program In Gerontology

This program is designed for students have either:
1) completed a Master's degree or higher qualification from an accredited institution or 2) are actively pursuing a graduate program at Wayne State University (Master's degree or higher).

1. Program Information

The Certificate Program is a multi-disciplinary program administered through the School of Social Work. The program is designed to prepare graduate students, individual practitioners, and professionals to work in the field of aging in a variety of settings, integrating gerontology into the student's primary discipline. Adding the gerontology certificate to existing educational and/or work experience is likely to enhance an individual's career opportunities and options.

Program Goals

Completion of the program will develop and/or enhance knowledge in a number of areas to include:

1. Psychological aspects of aging in the context of human development
2. Aging in a political and economic context
3. Health, biological and physiological aspects of aging
4. Provisions of services to older persons in a variety of settings
5. Communication with older persons
6. Public policy and administration of programs for older adults.

2. Admission

a) Prerequisites

For admission into the Graduate Gerontology Certificate Program, the applicant must satisfy the following requirements:

1. Meet Wayne State University Graduate School admission standards
2. Hold a master's degree from an accredited educational institution or be actively pursuing a master's or doctoral degree at Wayne State University
3. Have a combined undergraduate and graduate GPA of 2.75 or above on a 4.0 scale

b) Policies:

All applicants are evaluated according to the following rubric. To be eligible for admission students must score a minimum of 70 or above. The admissions decisions are made by the Coordinator of the Gerontology Certificate program, the Program Advisor, and/or the Associate Dean of Wayne State University School of Social Work. Gerontology faculty may also be included in admissions decision.

To be awarded a Graduate Degree or Certificate, a student must have achieved at least a “B” (3.0) overall grade point average.

The School of Social Work’s policy on Academic Termination and Reinstatement stipulates that a student will be terminated from the Graduate Certificate Program if one or more of the following occur:

1. Receipt of “B-” grades and below in three (3) classroom courses;
2. Receipt of one (1) grade of “F” in a classroom course listed on the Plan of Work for the Certificate;

3. The student receives a mark of "WN", "WP", or "WF" in a Course in the professional curriculum (classroom/online) without approval of the assigned Advisor or Program Coordinator;
4. The Student who falls below a grade point average of 3.0 can constitute reason for dismissal from a program at the department or program's discretion.

The University's Graduate School Bulletin requires that: “a Graduate Certificate program must be completed within three years, a minimum grade point average of 3.0 in certificate courses must be maintained, and only nine semester credits of certificate course work may be applied toward a graduate degree.”

3. Program Requirements

To earn the Graduate Gerontology Certificate, the student must successfully complete 12 credits of approved courses for the Certificate Program (see course list). Course work consists of one core course, Introduction to Gerontology, and nine other credits in three additional categories. In the personal interview, the student and the admissions coordinator develop the Plan of Work for the course work based on the student's background, major areas of concentration, and career goals.

The program must be completed within three years. Most students enroll in one or two courses per term. Courses are offered by departments throughout the university and may be offered in the late afternoon or evening. Most courses are offered once per year. Up to nine of the 12 credits may be applied to both the Certificate and the graduate degree, subject to approval of the relevant academic department and the graduate school.

Graduation Requirements

All coursework must be completed in accordance with the regulations of the Graduate School and the School of Social Work. Students must maintain a 3.0 GPA in the Certificate coursework and complete twelve credits of approved courses within four years to earn the graduate certificate. If the student has already completed a master's degree, the certificate is awarded when the student has met all the certificate requirements. If the student is earning the certificate concurrently with a master's degree, the certificate is awarded when all the requirements of the certificate and the degree have been met.
