

DISABILITY JUSTICE SERIES

WAYNE STATE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL

The Detroit Disability Justice Movement

March 24, 2022
3 - 5 pm on wayne.edu/live

This interactive discussion will explore the disability justice movement in our own backyard. Local panelists will discuss the history of the disability justice movement in Detroit, where we are at now and where we need to go. Attendees will hear ways in which they can advocate for disability justice at the individual micro and macro policy level in their community.

Panelists

Owólabi Aboyade

Coordinator of Community Care Circles
Detroit Disability Power;
co-founder of Relentless Bodies;

Hala Alazzawi

Gender and Religion Initiatives Coordinator
Michigan Disability Rights Coalition

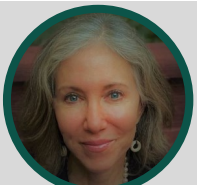

Tameka Citchen-Spruce

LEAD Black Initiatives Coordinator
Michigan Disability Rights Coalition;
Community Organizer
Warriors on Wheels of Metro Detroit;
Program Assistant
Beaumont Health, Healthy Dearborn;

Jamie Junior, ADAC

Community Coordinator
City of Detroit, Civil Rights, Inclusion &
Opportunity Dept, Office of Disability Affairs;
Community Liaison
University of Michigan
Rehabilitation Research Training Center;

Sharon Milberger, Sc.D.

Director
Michigan Developmental Disabilities Institute
Will serve as facilitator of this discussion*

For 86 years the Wayne State University School of Social Work has invested in, and committed to, the rights of those with physical, cognitive and emotional disabilities. This academic year we are proud to host an open, honest and powerful three-part series focused on disability justice, which will provide participants with tangible ways in which they can advocate for a just society and empower social change in their communities.

ACCOMODATIONS

This event will host an American Sign Language interpreter and provide live captioning.

SPONSORS

This event is sponsored by the Edith Harris Endowed Memorial Fund and the Wayne State University School of Social Work.

LEARN MORE & RSVP

go.wayne.edu/disabilityjustice